Butcher Cattle While the supply of butcher stuff was not large, a weak and lower tendency prevailed in sympathy with steers. Good fat grades of cows were source, and such sold very near steady. The same also was true on desirable butcher helfers, but on medium stock of all Islands the market was very slow and 10s lower. Canners were very uneven, though while the demand was broad, butches were seeking to cheapen their buildings and to a certain extent secured a 16s decline, although there was still a considerable portion steady.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—The trade in the quarantine alleys, with liberal supplies at all points, was of a fairly satisfactory nature, and the general market ruled fully attack. Notwithstanding a report of 140 cars for the day, the demand both from local packers and suppling buyers was broad enough that practically everything sold steady. However, some lower spots materialized, a string or two of pretty glood cattle selling around $1.2, being 160 lower. One very good bunch of sterns sold at $1.60, with the bulk pretty good at $1.50094.55, and not many common and fair steers were available.

The cone market was generally steady, though every indication at the start pointed lower, though one seller who held practically all cowsquoted them. The tender of the start pointed lower some very fair that selling at $2.1692.55 for a pretty fair class.

was reasonably good, but included a good many pins and lights that were on the green, grasey order.

The market opened with conditions unfavorable to sellers and they were forced to make concessions in prices in order to do business. All buyers, but especially the packers, were bearish, and would not even look at hogs unless sellers were willing to accept a decline of full 10c from the best time on Tuesday, and in places buyers secured a reduction of 15c. The best medium welshas, suitable for butchers, were the best sellers, and showed the least decline, with good lights, 160 158 lbs. for shipping, next. Plain, coarse, half-fat hogs, on the packer order, were extremely slow asle. While the good light hogs sold well, the common little plax and Soutawest trashy lights were almost unsalable at any price, as nobody wanted them at any figure. Half fat stuff, especially lambe, were not wanted at any price, and do not sell any better than a week or ten days ago, while good, fat stock has advanced in the meantime fully Ec. Culls and all little, thin lambs are extremely slow sale, with prices irregular and unsatisfactory. The stocker trader remains strong on the best young slock, with a much larger demand than supply.
